

Just because I've done business with a company, why should I want them bothering me after our business has been conducted? If I found them without their contact in the first place, I'll be able to find them again. Further, it shouldn't be automatic. I should at least be given the chance to say no I want no further contact.